

Senior Kickoff: For Seniors and Families

What is Most Important to You?

- What are my reasons for going to college? What are my long terms goals?
- Where do I see myself? 2 or 4 year institution? Small or large school?
- Do I want to stay close to home or am I prepared to visit my family only a few times a year?
- Have my grades been high enough to be considered by a very selective school?
- Do I want a demanding academic environment?
- How important will cost be in my final choice?

Where do I apply?

“Reach” schools: If your test scores/GPA are not within the middle 50% of last year’s admitted class, the school is considered a reach. Any school with an admission rate of under 10-15% is considered a reach even if you have a 4.0 GPA and perfect test score.

*If you fall under the middle 50% of last years admitted class, it is beneficial to submit an essay even if it is optional.

“Match” schools: Meet the entrance/admission requirements, but the school is considered selective

“Probable” schools: Meet or exceed the entrance/admission requirements and selectivity process

ACT/SAT and Test Optional Policies

College admissions continues to change as colleges adopt test optional policies. Test optional does not mean ACT/SAT scores are not important.

- ⇒ Consider taking the ACT/SAT, even if the colleges are test-optional. A strong score may be able earn merit scholarships or other opportunities.
- ⇒ When deciding whether to submit your score, compare your score with the college's middle 50% range of admitted students and consider whether the score strengthens your application. Does the college superscore? Are test scores required for scholarships?
- ⇒ Know the difference between test optional, test required, test preferred, and test blind policies.
- ⇒ Students should check the college's official website for the most current requirements, since policies can change.

AP/Dual Credit Transferability

- ⇒ No set standard
- ⇒ Example:

 - ISU: 3, 4, 5 - Math 145 (4 credits)
